Anthony J. Limberakis
National Commander of the Order of St. Andrew/Archons of the Ecumenical Patriarchate Zealously Committed to Religious Freedom for the Mother Church of Constantinople

"An extraordinary example of Christian Stewardship"
"Tireless in his Efforts on Behalf of the Ecumenical Patriarchate"
Anthony J. Limberakis
Steadfast Crusader for the Ecumenical Patriarchate

Congratulations, Dr. Limberakis!
Thank you for your strong leadership, many accomplishments, and global efforts to protect and defend the Ecumenical Patriarchate.

We are deeply grateful.

Ambassador George L. Argyros
Commander Dr. Limberakis

in your constant and continued effort to achieve the “Beautiful, the Mighty and the True”
you have led the order of St. Andrew the Apostle, Archons of the Ecumenical Patriarchate
to its highest level of accomplishment.

In the struggle to bring religious freedom to all and especially to our captive Ecumenical Patriarchate, you showed us by your example that we need
faith, prayer and hard work.
And you did it so humbly and yet with such Αρχοντιά!

We thank you!

CONGRATULATIONS
Dr. ANTONY LIMBERAKIS!

We are all very grateful for your effective leadership on behalf of the Diaspora.

Your extraordinary record of accomplishments has made us very proud.

Wishing you health and continued success always.
On September 23, 2011 Archbishop Demetrios of America met with Prime Min-ister of Turkey Recep Tayyip Erdogan (center) to discuss matters regarding religious freedom and the Ecumenical Patriarchate. Accompanying the Archbishop were (from left) Rev. Alexander Karloutsos, Dennis Mehand, member of the Religious Freedom Committee, Michael Jabour, Vice Chairman of the Archdiocesan Council, Dr. Limberakis, and Religious Freedom Chairman John Carimatis.

The approach has been multifaceted. A religious freedom team visits Turkey every year to meet with as many ministers as possible. Another trip is made annually to the Euro-pian Union and the Commission on the EU enlargement. We another goal is to constantly monitor it. In 2003, Limberakis began assembling a religious freedom team with the goal of talking to as many politicians as possible. Another trip is made annually to the Euro-
pian Union and the Commission on the EU enlargement.

Archbishop Demetrios’ election in 1999. He had spoken with his Church to join the European Union, which given them a strong leverage point with European nations. Finally, said Limberakis, Patriarch Bartholomew spoke before the U.S. Ambasdator to Turkey John Halecky, Secretary of the Order since 1998, at a presentation of Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew to the

So, Turkey’s reversal on these matters is an important comment on what a difficult goal this was for Anthony and the Order to achieve.

Thank you for all you have done for the Order of Saint Andrew

Your focus on and passion for our faith are inspirational.

in-law, a radiologist who had founded Radiology in Philadelphia, recruited Limberakis to practice in 1983, and he’s been there ever since.

Although he was a practicing radiologist, Limber-akis never felt that pressure from his father in his primary. He did, however, complete a project in the mid-1980s titled “A Tribute to Our Clergy,” a multimedia presentation featuring Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center and the Gra-dian Valley.

Since the taking of the honor of Saint Andrew the Apostle, our indefatigable National Commander, Dr. Antony Limberakis, has defined the mission of the Archons as true “Defenders of the Faith”. He has raised the bar in his effort to pioneer new strategies in promoting religious freedom for our Mother Church and has succeeded in taking this sacred message to the State, the National, and the International level.

The purpose of the state resolution is to redress, Georgeson said. First they highlighted the Patriarchate’s problems to many Orthodox Christians, and second, they educate state legislators. The archon team then submitted the resolution to the United States Congress. According to Memoles, about half the members of Congress are former state legislators. But the way is getting bumpier, and Georgeson said they have faced more active opposition in money from the Turkish-American community in Colorado, Tennessee, and Washington, D.C., and from the Turkish government itself.

It’s a shame why the American Orthodox bishops refused to come to Congress in convincing the..." said Georgeson. These resolutions are official actions.

They got kicked around, we got ridiculed by those people that we used to meet with, and we just kept on coming back in their face. And now they recognize us," Brady said. "When you work with Dr. Limberakis you become very inspired. And you realize that they have been happening over the last 32.5 years, you see what dedication is, and you want to become part of that dedication. And you want the Patriarchate to have religious freedom because he is our spiritual father.”

STATE LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTIONS

In 2006, Limberakis and the archon team launched the 50-State Legislative Religious Freedom Resolutions Initiative, and appointed Stephen Georgeson of Colorado, Texas, and Washington, D.C., an archon since 2007 and former state legislators, to be in charge of lobbying the state lawmakers who is willing to introduce the bill to the state house or senate. Those contacts have taken against the Ecumenical Patriarchate, including constitutional challenges to allow it to train its clergy, and what was an honorific organization to one that is very much an active organization in support of the Ecumenical Patriarchate to fulfill this ministry, and that is to serve the church in Constantinople and to apply to regain them.
